

Please, please please don't - I repeat - DO NOT allow cell phone talking on planes. These people already talk nasty, are loud, rude, you name it. Imagine 100 people in a cramped plane, all doing/acting as the above. Imagine a newlywed away from the mate for the first time... you have to listen to what they're going to do when she gets back. Imagine having to listen to one side of a really bad argument. And they don't care! There is going to be plenty of cases of 'phone rage' on every flight. Someone is going to holler to someone to "shut the f up!", someone (several someones) will agree and it's going to be the wild west in the sky. I read that "maybe in an emergency...". Isn't that what attendants are for? And what can one do when one is 35,000 feet up if there is an emergency? If they can use cell phones on planes, then I should be able to smoke on planes. Same dangers to everyone on board.
